Introduction

In this section, you review the general linear model, the assumptions that underlie that model, and the types of linear regression models. You also learn to use SAS procedures to perform an exploratory data analysis and then build a multiple regression model. Finally, you learn to use SAS procedures to generate graphs that help you to identify common problems associated with regression.

Close